Simple Present

Betrachtet man die Arbeiten von Federico Pietrella, ist man im ersten Moment verwirrt. Wie sind sie gemacht, fragt man sich automatisch, die detailscharfen Portraits, Landschaften, urbanen Räume. Die Frage, wie er zu seinen Motiven kommt, erübrigtsich. Das tägliche Leben begegnet uns. Der Blick aus dem Fenster in den Wolkenhimmel, Wohnräume des Künstlers, der winterliche Tiergarten in Berlin und Pietrellas Malerei hat einen starken fotorealistischen Charakter, aber von allen Künstlern dieser Richtung unterscheidet er sich stark. Auf die Arbeit mit einem Malpinsel oder Malspatznel verzichtet er vollkommen. Federico Pietrella malt mit einem Gummistempel, einem Datumsstempel. Das setzt eine außergewöhnliche Beherrschung des Malraumes voraus. Denn vor dem Aufsetzen des Stempels muss der kleinste Teil von diesem berücksichtigt werden. Bei der täglichen Arbeit wird immer das aktuelle Datum eingestellt, aus den Titeln seiner Arbeiten kann man den ersten und letzten Tag der Arbeit am jeweiligen Werk erkennen.

Der Ausstellungstitel „Simple Present“ kann als Hinweis für diese Arbeit mit dem Datumsstempel stehen, als Fortschreiten der Zeit, die im Wachsen der Bilder dokumentiert wird.

Simple Present

On encountering the work of Frederico Pietrella one is initially bewildered, and automatically asks, how are they made, the precisely detailed portraits, landscapes, urban spaces? The question of his choice through the window, the artist's living room, Berlin's Tiergarten in winter, and the portraits, frequently of his wife and daughter.

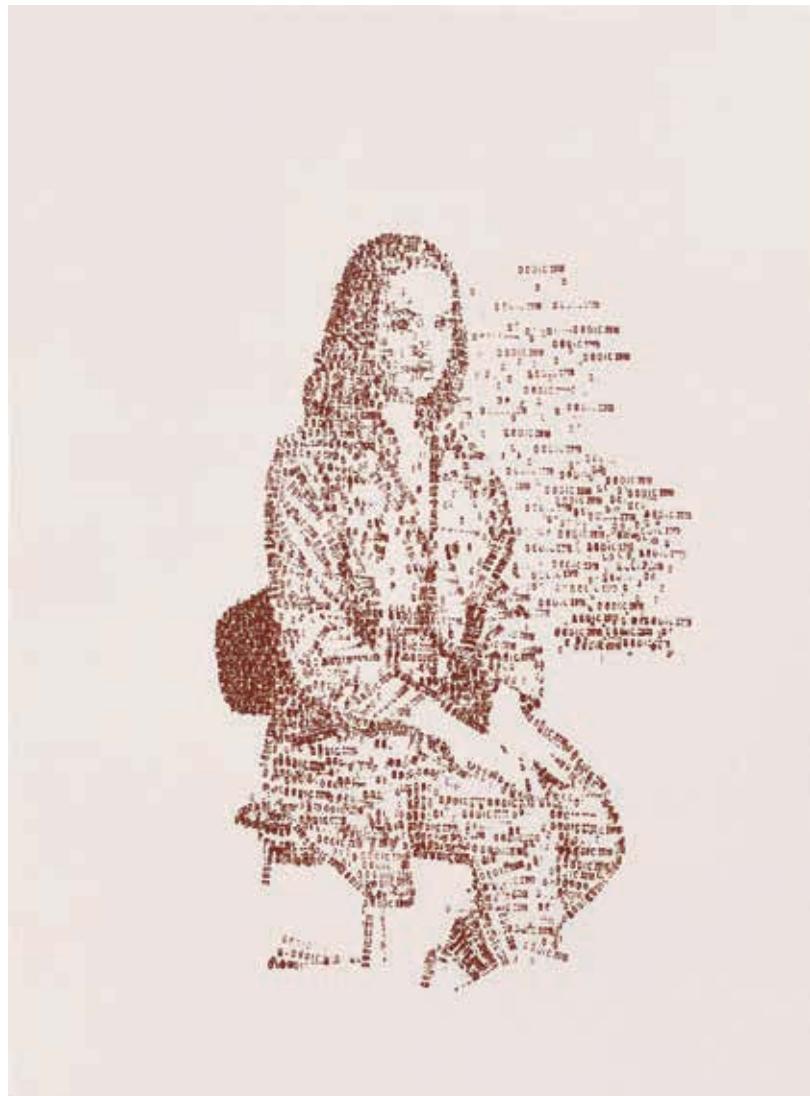

Pietrella's paintings have a strong photorealistic character, however he is quite distinct from all other artists of this current. He completely dispenses with brushes or spatulas in his work. Federico Pietrella paints with a rubber stamp, a date stamp. This assumes an extraordinary mastery of the pictorial space. Before applying the stamp every part of it must be considered, down to the smallest detail. and the last day he worked on the respective picture.

“Simple Present“ serves as a reference to his work with the date stamp. The progress of time is documented through the growth of the pictures.
